Meet Jim Estes

New Men's Long Distance Running Chair

When the 25th USATF Annual Meeting in Greensboro, North Carolina was gavelled to a close on December 7, Jim Estes, a Louisville, Kentucky running specialty store owner (Fleet Feet) and race director of the Papa John's 10 Miler (USA Championship), assumed the Chairmanship of the Men's Long Distance Running Committee. Estes, 37, replaced Dan Grimes who served as Men's LDR Chair since 1998.

After the convention Charlie Mahler, talked with Estes about his new responsibilities. The following are excerpts from that interview which can be found in the wire archives on www.runningusa.org.

RUSA: You seemed to do a lot of listening while you were in Greensboro. What did you learn?

ESTES: I learned a lot, so it is hard to single out just one thing. One would be that even though it seems to many the leadership of USATF has forgotten about LDR, it is not true. I was able to spend some time with Craig Masback and was excited to learn that he has several ideas that will benefit LDR.

LDR is considered to be an area that has potential for growth and ultimately a great deal of developmental potential due to that growth. They see the widespread interest in redeveloping our LDR talent to the point where we are a significant force in LDR events. They realize there is no quick fix for the problem, that we need time to turn it around.

I was impressed with the sheer volume of work that goes into the organization. Be it staff from the national office handling the day-to-day operations or the incredible number of volunteers helping to coordinate competition opportunities, etc.

RUSA: What do you think the biggest challenge of the position will be?

ESTES: No doubt, there will be several big challenges. As a businessman and event director, I have made some decisions that weren't necessarily popular in the beginning, but they have usually become well-received and accepted after a short time. It is sometimes a challenge to get people to see the big picture or that in many instances, change is good.

Also, I think there could be challenges when it comes to revamping the USATF LDR/association relationship. I understand that each association is a little different when it comes to their focus. Whether they focus their time and energy on youth programs or clubs, I want them to understand the value that I place on them because of their impact on our future LDR athletes. I'd want to create a system within each association that will provide support to an emerging star, while using that athlete's position within the association to create a connection with the younger athletes.

RUSA: What are you most excited about?

ESTES: I am most excited about giving back to a sport that has given so much to me. While I've never been an Olympian or even been competitive on a national level, the sport has provided for me very well. It helped pay for college, it is how I met my wife and many friends and it is the basis of my business. I feel that I owe a lot to the sport and I'm excited about the prospect of helping develop the future of our sport.

RUSA: You're a successful businessman, a successful event director and you certainly had success as a runner (sub-30 minute 10K). What have you learned from those experiences that you think will help you in this position?

ESTES: I've learned the same thing from all three, persistence and patience are very important. In all three there is a long-term approach that must be taken with no immediate pay-off. There is a lot of hard work without seeing the benefits in the short-term.

RUSA: What are your top priorities?

JIM ESTES: I guess my biggest priority is to continue to identify sources for funding and development of LDR programs. Ranging from the Team USA Distance Running training centers like Mammoth Lakes/Chula Vista and Hansons-Brooks to youth and "grassroots" programs. These are all long-term approaches for the development of our sport and they need support now in order to establish their base for the future.

I am very passionate about the sport, especially the development and support of our emerging athletes.

Finally, I've never been one to think that I have all the answers. I'm always open to suggestions and ideas.

2004 Selection Procedures

for U.S. Olympic Team Trials - Men's Marathon

hosted by the Mercedes Marathon on February 7 in Birmingham, AL

Qualifying window:

January 1, 2002 - January 8, 2004 and November 4, 2001

U.S. Olympic Marathon Trials Standards for Men

A = 2:20:00 B = 2:22:00

Qualifying Guidelines

1. The qualifying mark must be made in a race on a certified course recognized by USA Track & Field or a member federation of the International Association of Athletics Federations (IAAF).
2. The qualifying standards must be met from January 1, 2002 through January 8, 2004 or at the 2001 USA Marathon Championships (November 4, 2001).
3. All qualifying performances are subject to verification.
4. "Gun" time is the only acceptable method of timing. Chip/net times cannot be used for qualifying.
5. Athletes must meet the "B" standard in order to enter the Olympic Trials. By running the "A" standard, athletes will have their expenses paid to the Olympic Trials.

The first opportunity to qualify for U.S. men was at the 2001 USA Marathon Championships hosted by the New York City Marathon on Sunday, November 4. Thereafter, the qualifying window re-opened on January 1, 2002 and closed 30 days (January 8) before the Olympic qualifying race in Birmingham, AL.

for U.S. Olympic Team - Men's Marathon

Men's Olympic Marathon

Athens, Greece, Sunday, August 29, 2004, 6:00pm

The point-to-point course starts at the historic site of Marathon and finishes in Athens at the marble Panathinaiko Stadium where the first modern Games were held in 1896.

2004 Olympic Marathon Qualifying Standards

for MEN A = 2:15:00 B = 2:18:00

1. Only athletes who finish the U.S. Olympic Team Trials in Birmingham and who have achieved the Olympic "A" or "B" qualifying standard will be eligible for selection to the 2004 U.S. Olympic Team.
2. If the Olympic Trials winner has achieved the Olympic "A" qualifying standard during the selection period, he will be nominated to the Olympic Team. Other members of the team, up to the maximum allowed will be selected from athletes, in rank order of finish at the Olympic Trials, who have met the Olympic "A" qualifying standard.
3. If the Olympic Trials winner has not achieved the Olympic "A" qualifying standard, but has achieved the Olympic "B" qualifying standard during the selection period, he will be the only marathon athlete nominated to the Olympic Team.

2004 USA Running Circuit (USARC) Offers Record Purse

Olympic Team Trials - Men's Marathon Kicks-Off Season on February 7

With a record $818,700 in guaranteed prize money, the richest USA Running Circuit in history is set for 2004. The USARC, a USA Track & Field road series, features USA Championships from 5 km to the marathon and attracts the best U.S. distance runners, including Olympians Deena Drossin, Meb Keflezighi, Elva Dryer and Bob Kennedy.

The tenth edition for the men and ninth for the women, the 2004 circuit has nine events for men and seven events for women. Every 2003 USARC race has returned to host a national championship.

National championship prize money totals more than $790,000 plus a $25,000 grand prix purse. The River Bank Run 25K, CVS/pharmacy Downtown 5K and Tufts 10K also have Open prize money. The first ten U.S. runners earn points at each USARC race (15 points for 1st, 12 for 2nd, 10 for 3rd, 7, 6, 5, 4, 3, 2 and 1), with a final $12,500 grand prix purse ($6000, $4000 and $2500) for the top three men and women point scorers overall. The USARC points at the USA Marathon Championships will be doubled.

The 2004 Olympic Team Trials - Men's Marathon, hosted by the Mercedes Marathon on February 7 in Birmingham, Alabama, kicks off the Men's USARC. The Gate River Run 15K, a long-standing national championship, opens the Women's USARC (also a Men's event) on March 13.

U.S. Men's Olympic Marathon Trials History

The Historical Selection Process of the U.S. Olympic Marathon Team by Dr. Bill Mallon

Condensed from pages 2-5, 1988 U.S. Olympic Marathon Trials Media Guide

Since 1968, the format for selecting U.S. Olympic marathoners has been fairly constant - hold a race, invite the best athletes and take the top three finishers to the Olympics. But it was not always so as in the early years of the modern Olympic Games various methods were used to select the U.S. marathoners for the Olympics.

1896 The first U.S. Olympic team was simply made up of athletes who decided to go to Athens to compete. At an indoor meet in February in Boston, Art Blake won his distance race easily and joked, "Oh, I am too good for Boston. I ought to go over and run the marathon in Athens." The remark was overheard by Arthur Burnham, a wealthy stockbroker who agreed to partly finance the trip for a group of Boston Athletic Association athletes.

1900 Again there was no official team selection or trials. Word of the Paris Games was spread to this country through Albert Spaulding of baseball and Spaulding Company fame. Several of the colleges and clubs decided to send a team of athletes to the Paris Games. Art Newton of the New York Athletic Club went to Paris as a result of winning a 15-mile race sponsored by that club on June 17. Dick Grant, of Harvard and the Boston Athletic Association, and Ron MacDonald, a Tufts medical student may have been sponsored by the BAA.

1904 Approximately 30 marathoners showed up for the St. Louis Olympics, a few affiliated with club teams, but the majority of them were there on their own accord. Most were Americans or Greeks, but the Greeks were for the most part Greek-Americans who had settled in this country.

1906 The 1906 Olympics are usually termed unofficial but they are historically important as well. For the first time, an American team was selected and, also for the first time, there was one standard uniform for the American athletes to wear. The AAU met in New York on February 27 and chose the athletes they thought would do the best in Athens. The first true American national team sailed for Greece on March 31.

1908-1960 Over the next five decades several races were used to determine the U.S. team for each Olympiad. They included: The Boston Marathon ('08, '12, '20, '24, '28, '32, '36, '39, '40, '47, '48, '51, '52, '56, '60), St. Louis Missouri AC ('08, '12), the "New York Evening Mail" modified marathon (about 12 miles, '12), a marathon in Los Angeles ('12), Brooklyn Seagate Marathon ('20), Detroit Auto City Marathon ('20), New York Marathon ('20), New York to Long Beach AAU Championship race ('28), the Chesapeake Bay Marathon ('28), Baltimore Marathon ('32), AAU Championship in Washington ('36) and AAU at Yonkers ('39, '47, '52, '56, '60).

The 1940 Games did not take place as originally scheduled but the marathon trials were held and three athletes were designated as "Olympic team" members. For the first time, a point for place system was used (1 for first, 2 for second, etc.) with the top three placers overall being named to the Olympic team. The point system continued to be used with varying degrees of success until 1964. In 1952 Ted Corbitt was given the third spot on the team even though he was only tied for fourth in point totals because he beat the other two candidates.

In 1960 AAU policy demanded that the marathoners finish both trials races (Boston and AAU Yonkers) in order to be selected for the Olympic team. At the time, the top American marathoner was clearly John J. "The Younger" Kelley. He won the AAU championship easily but was forced to drop out of the Boston race with a heel blister. Luckily for Kelley, the ruling was rescinded. Based on the point system which supposedly was still in use, the unlucky athlete who had actually qualified was Robert Cons, who finished fourth at Yonkers and eighth at Boston.

1964 There were once again two marathon trials: The AAU race at Yonkers on May 24 and a new race on the Olympic trials scene, the Culver City Marathon in California on July 26. The winner of the AAU race was an automatic selection with the top two American finishers from Culver City being the other selections. For the first time ever, the Boston Marathon had no bearing in the selection of U.S. Olympic marathoners.

At Yonkers, Buddy Edelen, who was our top international marathoner since Clarence DeMar, made a rare U.S. appearance after training and racing in England. He put on what was surely one of the greatest performances in U.S. Olympic Marathon Trials history. That May day in Yonkers was marked by high humidity and 91 degrees F (33 degrees C) but only Edelen seemed unaffected. Finishing the difficult course in 2:24:26, his margin of victory was almost 20 minutes.

1968-2004 In 1968, the marathoners were chosen for the first time on the basis of a single race and this has been the standard practice ever since. In 1984, women held their first Olympic Trials after the race was added to the Olympic program. The race sites and dates for men have been as follows:

- 1968 - Alamosa, Colorado, August 18
- 1972 - Eugene, Oregon, July 9

USA Men's Marathon Championship Moments

Charles in Charge

1925 - At the Boston Marathon, Charles Mellor won the first U.S. national championship over Boston legend, defending champion and 1924 Olympic Marathon bronze medalist, Clarence DeMar, 2:33:01 to 2:33:38.

Twice as Nice

1927 - Clarence DeMar became the first U.S. marathon champion to repeat with his victory in Baltimore. DeMar won the next two national titles at Boston.

Eight-Peat

1963 - John J. Kelley "The Younger" captured his record eighth straight U.S. marathon title at Yonkers.

The First U.S. Olympic Trials

1968 - At the altitude of Alamosa, Colo., Olympic steeplechaser George Young ran 2:30:48 to win the first U.S. Olympic Marathon Trials race. It also was the first Trials race that was also a national marathon championship. It wasn't until the 1988 Trials and subsequent Trials, however, that the Trials were also designated as a national championship.

Top Dog

1986 - Bill Donakowski ran the fastest USA Marathon Championship performance (2:10:41) at Twin Cities.

Dark Horse

1988 - In one of the biggest upsets in Trials history and the first U.S. Olympic Marathon Trials that offered prize money, Mark Conover surprised the field and the pundits with a stunning victory (2:12:26).

Not So "Silly Rabbit"

1994 - Paul Pilkington went to Los Angeles to "rabbit" the international race (i.e., set the pace), but he also came to run the USA Championship. During the race, Pilkington built a big lead and the following pack waited for him to come back or drop out, but like the Energizer bunny, Pilkington kept going and going and going until he won the race, the U.S. title, $27,000 and a Mercedes car.

Gutting It Out

1996 - In Charlotte, North Carolina, Bob Kempainen, a 1992 Olympic marathoner and doctor-to-be, threw up several times in the latter stages of the race and still increased his lead to win the U.S. Olympic Trials and his first marathon in 2:12:45 (a personal record). His $100,000 payday was the largest first place prize in marathon history.

Top Dollar

First USA Men's Marathon Championship

BAA Boston Marathon Boston, Massachusetts, On April 20, 1925, the Boston Marathon hosted the first USA Men's Marathon Championship designated by the Amateur Athlete Union (AAU). Local favorite son and 1924 Olympic Marathon bronze medalist Clarence DeMar was the defending Boston champion and looking for his fourth consecutive Boston win. With snow flurries and a stiff head wind, the race came down to DeMar and Olympic teammate Charles Mellor of Chicago, Ill. Mellor - who raced with a cheek full of tobacco - pulled away from DeMar in downtown Boston to become the first U.S. marathon champion in 2:33:01. DeMar finished second in 2:33:38 with Frank Zuna third in 2:35:36.

Marathon Progressions

Because of the variety of courses and the vagaries of weather conditions which affect the marathon more than any other track and field event, no "true" nor official world records existed for the distance until 2004. However, the following is a progressions list of the best performances on record in the various categories. The lists below concern only races over the standard marathon distance of 26 miles, 385 yards (42,195 meters) or longer.

Record Purse for 2004 USARC, 2003 Edition Very Successful

The 2003 USARC was perhaps the best ever, featuring three U.S. records, five national championships records, 54 men and 49 women. While $425,000 was earned by U.S. athletes, fast times and exciting and deep competition were the rule.

U.S. road records at 15 km (47:15) and 20 km (58:57 and 1:05:52) by Drossin, Keflezighi and Runyan respectively highlighted the 2003 USARC. The three U.S. records were the most set in one USARC season; the previous record was one (1995 and 2002).

In 2003, participating athletes took home

$412,350 in prize money plus a $25,000 Grand Prix purse for the top three scorers. The USA Running Circuit mission is to showcase, support and promote U.S. runners, and since its inception in 1995, the USARC and its races have provided over $4.2 million dollars to U.S. athletes.

OFFICIAL USATF SPONSORS

Future Olympians?

Too early to tell but Footlocker National High School Cross Country Championships winners Katelyn Kaltenbach (Aurora, Colorado) and Matt Withrow (Andrew High School, Chicago, IL) have already achieved fame for distance running. Many of America's top marathoners began as cross country runners. [photo by Bob Betancourt]
